

Silver Lining

By Hailey Matson

Although quarantine has got us all down, we have had some time to ourselves, some time to reflect on who we actually are,
and who our real friends are.
our real friends are the people who reach out to us when there are hard times like this.

They reach out almost like it's some sort of relief to know we're okay. we've gotten to go outside more, and experience the beautiful nature mother nature has blessed us with.

We have gotten time to see the true beauty in being alone.
